Volunteer Opportunities
Volunteers and the Friends of Rocky Fork State Park assist in protecting and preserving the cultural and natural resources of Rocky Fork. They do this by giving of their time and talents to ensure their park’s integrity for future generations to enjoy. It’s easy to show your support – join the Friends group or participate in one of the many volunteer opportunities offered. For more information, visit www.rockyforkfriends.org.
Lamar Alexander Rocky Fork State Park is 2,076-acres of scenic wilderness in Unicoi County, in the southern Appalachian Mountains. The park is surrounded on three sides by the Cherokee National Forest. The steep, rugged terrain is drained by numerous cool mountain streams including its namesake, Rocky Fork Creek, which flows through the park. The stream is located in the pristine Rocky Fork watershed. With large moss covered boulders and deep pools, Rocky Fork Creek is noted for miles of excellent native trout fishing. A corridor of the AT and the Sampson Mountain Wilderness Area are nearby.

The land was designated a Tennessee State Park in October 2012, but was not officially opened and staffed until May 2015.

Weather can change abruptly in the mountains, so be prepared. In the event that you see a black bear in the backcountry, do not approach the bear or throw food to the bear. Keep your pets leashed, for the safety of your pet and for the safety of park wildlife. It is recommended that hikers have familiarity with the area and experience with navigating backcountry terrain. Geo-referenced maps and other maps are available online.

Hiking

There are nearly 14-miles of marked trails ranging from easy to strenuous. Trails offer stunning views of the southern Appalachian Forest, waterfalls and direct access to The Appalachian National Scenic Trail.

Fishing

The swift moving waters surrounded by lush native vegetation are ideal for native brook and wild rainbow trout. The waters of Blockstand and Rocky Fork Creek are favored for fly-fishing. The higher elevation streams in Rocky Fork are known as one of the top three brook trout fisheries in the state. The last mile of Rocky Fork (roadside section) is stocked seasonally and can be fished without special restrictions. TWRA regulations above the gate provide only for single hook, artificial fly/lure fishing.

Horseback Riding

At this time, there is not any horse access inside the park. The park must be accessed from the Cherokee National Forest’s horse access trails, www.fs.usda.gov/cherokee. A new equine access trail in Rocky Fork is in the planning stage. Almost 8-miles of marked horseback riding trails in the park connect to 8,000-acres of remote, unmarked and unsigned logging roads in the Cherokee National Forest. Expect rough terrain, stream crossings and picturesque vistas. Horse trailer parking is located at the old Morrill Motors Plant 1503 Hwy 352, Flag Pond, TN, 37657.

Mountain Biking

Nearly 10-miles of marked mountain biking trails inside the state park boundary connect to 8000-acres of remote, unmarked and unsigned logging roads in the Cherokee National Forest. These trails provide for scenic and challenging rides for the ambitious mountain biker. The primitive trails are shared with hikers and horseback riders on some trails. Expect rough terrain, stream crossings and outstanding views.
